

Thank you for patience reading. I promise it will be rewarded with increased understanding IF you put your eyes and attention on the evidence referenced in these posts.

Some common themes may appear in a different light, which may be personally disturbing for people working in the some of these nonprofits, or for parents who have cast their lot in with the smaller advocacy groups backed by the bigger, but less than forthright about their overall purposes, tax-exempt foundations.

If you are among those feeling personally uncomfortable or disturbed after seeing this information, consider the choices you now have -- deny, dismiss, disprove my deductions from the evidence or find better ones (but -- incorporating the evidence) (good luck with that...), or do something constructive about the situation.
