Annotations © 2017 Anna Victoria Englund. I am (currently) blogging public school-reform networked nonprofits in the larger context of tax-exempt foundations (who sponsor them, often synchronizing with each other) and placement of untrackable institutes and centers within universities for similar purposes. I have also tracked since 2009 family court-connected nonprofits with similar private agendas, public/private partnerships, etc. at FamilyCourtMatters.org. My interest in Pennsylvania as to the courts dates from 2011, and currently as to school reform from the Annenberg Institute for School Reform at Brown University (Rhode Island), and its "Annenberg School of Communications" funding (ASC Trust at Univ. of Pennsylvania). Attempting to locate a budget or statements for either the U of P OR the Annenberg School (one of 12 schools there), I discovered Univ. of Penn was private, not public as I had previously thought.
