In FY 2011 (or close to it) the entity CES (Coalition for Essential Schools) on which this is modeled, put Gregory Peters to its Board of Directors. Both outfits notoriously avoid proper registration and filing (i.e., like to operate outside state laws regulating nonprofits and corporations) while saving students.

has PhD, fairly well-known in field, now at East Bay Healthy Communities (fiscal agent “Community Initiatives,” a SF Foundation spinoff. Community Initiatives features public/private projects as well as incubator for small groups) i.e., EINs may not be shown

The mission of SF-CESS is to assist schools and their communities to develop and sustain a small, equitable and high performing school. We do this work through coaching & technical assistance, professional development & consulting, with an eye on equity and best practices to secure our students. We work mostly in the Bay Area but consult for schools elsewhere where all our funds are in a local bank - we do not own and property other than office equipment housed in our office.
